

How to Write Fast, High-Quality Articles

S No	Table Of Contents	Page No
01	Introduction	03
02	Writing Tips Articles	04
03	What to Put on Your List	05
04	Other Ways to Write a High-Quality Article Quickly	07
05	Write as if You are Having a Conversation	08
06	SEO for High Quality	09
07	Make Your Article Easy to Understand	10
08	Setting A Timer	12
08	If You Do Research for Your Article	13
08	Making a Name for Yourself	15
08	Choosing to Write	16

Introduction:

If you want to learn how to write fast, high quality articles, there are several methods which will help. The format you use is one of the tools that will help you to consistently write articles quickly. But not only do they have to be done quickly, they must be interesting and of a quality that someone else would be interested in reading.

Writing Tips Articles

One type of article that is easy to write is one that uses tips for practically anything that you know enough about to write. For example, Ten Tips for Making a Delicious Dinner. If you explain in tip form what you need, what to do with it and how to get the end result, your job is finished.

Tips articles are easy to write because they are about something that you know. They only require a small amount of information. The tips articles are just facts so there is no need to add a lot of extra information. The main ideas you will be putting down are what you know. If you need a statistic or two they will be found quickly and added to the article.

Make sure you are writing about what you know well enough to tell someone else about the subject. The articles you write must be factual and in order. Even something you know a little about can be expanded on by research. The research will be minimal and this saves a lot of much needed time for writing.

Too much research will cut into the time you have to write. By following an outline that you set up for yourself the article can be written in a short time.

What to Put on Your List

The first thing is to choose the subject about which you are going to write. This should be simple. There are hundreds of things you have personal experience with from jobs to people. What have you done over the years?

Think about the many things that you have learned just by doing them. You have thousands of articles just waiting to be written! Teenagers can even write these articles because they are about real time experiences.

The next step will be the way you present your article. It can be anything that will have information. Is it going to be a tips article or a reasons article? It may be a 'places to go' article, 'ways to accomplish something', 'signs to look for' or 'how to' article. There are a multitude of options for this as well.

The number of steps that you put in your article will determine the length. If you use more tips the article will be easier. You will have to go into detail somewhat about each of the steps in your article. This does not have to be a long detailed explanation as long as it hits the key points.

When you are finished, always make sure you proofread your work. You may be missing punctuation, misspelled words or a point that you did not elaborate on quite enough. Spiff it up and make sure you do not have run on sentences.

The great thing about doing these types of articles is they are easy to do, they are always in demand (people are always looking for ways to do things) and you can draw upon your experiences. This allows the article to be written fairly quickly because you do not have to spend a lot of time researching.

Other Ways to Write a High-Quality Article Quickly

Another thing that most people do not realize is the more articles you write, the easier it becomes. Practice is one way people get good at what they do. This is true when it comes to anything you do on a day to day basis. If you are a hairdresser, you know the routine and the more hair you cut or curl or highlight, the easier it becomes.

The secret to doing anything including writing is the routine that you set up for yourself. It is the way you have of doing things. Everyone has their own preferred method. When some people write, they just jump into it and start writing. Other people would prefer to do an outline about their subject and take it from there.

Write as if You are Having a Conversation

One thing that many people find when writing articles is that it is easier to write as if you are just holding a conversation with someone. Imagine someone has asked you a question about your subject.

For example, you may have chosen to write about how to house train a puppy. If you explain the steps as if you were telling a friend how you have house trained puppies in the past, the article will be written before you know it.

The trick to writing articles as if you were talking to someone is to think about the key points that you want to make. When you have a conversation, the questions someone asks you are going to be random but when you write, they have to be in order. So if it helps to set up a rough draft of the points this will only help the writing go more quickly.

SEO for High Quality

Another thing you have to remember when writing articles is the article has to be optimized for SEO (search engine optimization) quality. If not, people are not going to find your article. The keywords you use are going to allow people to find your article when they look for information on the Internet. The words you choose should be extremely relevant to the subject.

Put yourself in the place of someone searching for your particular subject. What would you put in the search bar if you were trying to find this subject? The marketer that is depending upon this article to generate traffic to his website will want the best keywords available.

One way of finding good keywords would be to do a little online research. Find other articles about your subject that are ranked high on the search engines, such as Google and Yahoo! See what keywords they are using and make sure these are used for your searches as well.

Make Your Article Easy to Understand

One thing people do not realize when they begin to write articles is that they do not have to be technical. When you are writing about something that people will want to read the simpler the better. Using big words and a lot of technical jargon is not necessary when you are writing a simple article. This will not impress the person who is looking for information on this subject.

What it will do is make them click to another article quickly to find the information they are seeking. After all, you have to remember they do not know how to do whatever it is they are searching. They want it explained in the simplest terms available. Or if they do know a little about it, they are looking for more. But they are also looking for something they understand.

If you are writing about cooking, all the fancy terms in the world are not going to make your article conducive to finding information. When someone is looking for a particular recipe to prepare a dish they do not know how to make, the terms should be easy to understand.

For example, instead of saying braise - which many people may not know - simply say brown your meat or vegetables in oil to begin with, then continue to cook the food in a liquid.

If someone has to stop and look up the words being used in the article, they are going to find another article that explains the method more quickly. This is the key to writing the article that will be viewed as a high-quality article. The writing will also go much more quickly.

Setting a Timer

If your problem seems to be having a hard time keeping to task, setting a timer may be the answer. If you know you only have a specific amount of time to finish something, this may help you to stay on track. Sometimes it is easier to get things done if you are on a schedule. This will help you to plan the writing and get the optimal amount of work done for the time you set.

Just remember to proofread your work before publishing it when using this method. A rush job does not mean that the work should be full of errors. It still has to be a top quality work if you want the traffic that it should generate. As mentioned before, once you do this over and over, it will get easier.

If You Do Research for Your Article

If you do research for the article you are writing, one way of making it go more quickly is to put in your search term on one of the search engines. Choose the top three or four results and copy a little from each one to either your word processor or notepad (whatever you are using to write the article).

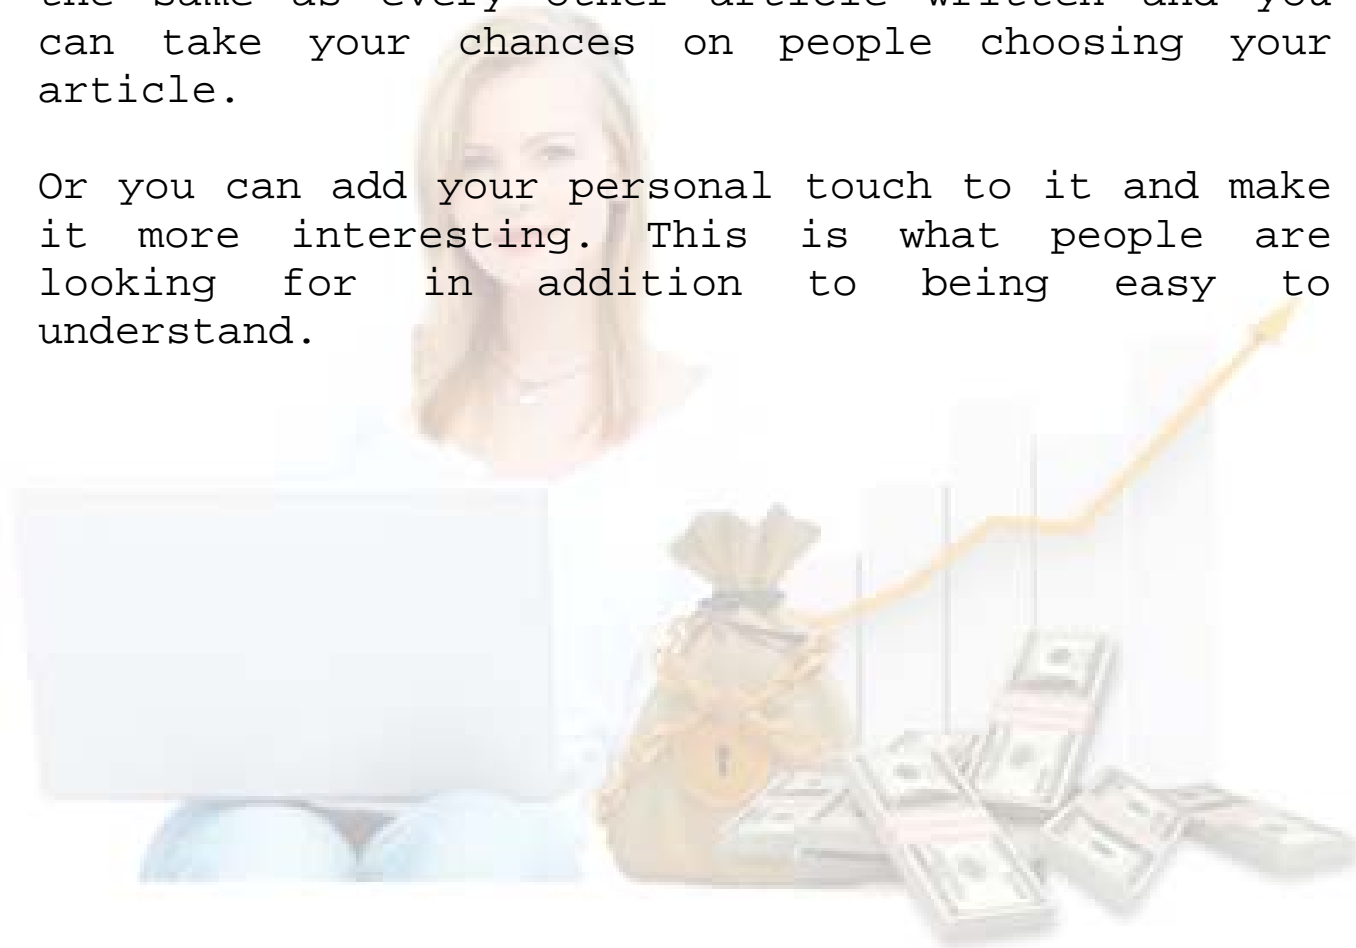

Then you can scan the information as you are writing. Pull out the most relevant information that you want to use in your article. DO NOT copy this information. The finished product must be in your own words. The information that you get from your search needs to be arranged in order. Do not pull out random information and throw it all together.

For the article to be top quality, use only the relevant information and add your point of view. This is what people are looking for when searching the Internet. Everyone has their own style of writing. Yours is what will make your articles stand out in the crowd. Face it.

Everything that can be written about has been written. You will not find anything new so you need to make it as interesting as possible.

The Internet is full of information for all types of subjects. The articles that are written can be the same as every other article written and you can take your chances on people choosing your article.

Or you can add your personal touch to it and make it more interesting. This is what people are looking for in addition to being easy to understand.

Making a Name for Yourself

The reasoning behind writing quality articles and writing them quickly is to get more of your work out to the public. When you have plenty of articles saturating the Internet, more people will read them. This will add to your credibility as a writer which in turn will generate traffic to your articles over other peoples.

When the articles you generate are done with professionalism it will not take long for this to show. The well written article will soon go to the top and you will begin to generate an income from your writing. This is the whole idea behind writing top quality articles and writing them quickly.

If you look on the search engines and find one of the top ranked articles there will be a place where you can find information on where to look for more work by this person. When you go to this link you will find that they have many articles written. This is how they make their way to the top.

Choosing to Write

Writing is a choice you make. If you think this is something you want to do, then do the very best that you possibly can. If you are going to write, the articles must be top quality and put out at a good rate so that you can let people see that you are a professional.

If the articles that you write are not good quality and straggling from one every week to a couple of times a month, your purpose for writing is not because you want to get noticed. You would be better off just keeping a journal for your own use. The information that is put out on the web should be information that can be helpful to others.

If you just enjoy it as a part time hobby, you cannot expect to be taken seriously. The people that go to your articles are going to be few and far between. The fact is, the more you write and the better it is the more people will begin to look for your work. So always put your best effort out and do an article that you would find informative if you were looking for information.

The best are already competing with you so in order to be ranked you will have to be better.

Practice makes perfect, so write every chance you get. You will find the more you write, the easier it becomes. So, sit down, make an outline and start writing on one of the many things that you already know. This is the best way to get started and before you know it you will have your article finished.

